THE CONSTITUTION

OF THE

SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.

It being evident, from the steady decline of a proper celebration of the National holidays of the United States of America, that popular concern in the events and men of the War of the Revolution is gradually declining, and that such lack of interest is attributable, not so much to the lapse of time and the rapidly increasing flood of immigration from foreign countries, as to the neglect, on the part of descendants of Revolutionary heroes, to perform their duty in keeping before the public mind the memory of the services of their ancestors and of the times in which they lived; therefore, the Society of the Sons of the Revolution has been instituted to perpetuate the memory of the men who, in the military, naval, and civil service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress, by their acts or counsel achieved the independence of the country, and to further the proper celebration of the anniversaries of the birthday of Washington, and of prominent events connected with the War of the Revolution; to collect and secure for preservation the rolls, records, and other documents relating to that period; to inspire the members of the Society with the patriotic spirit of their forefathers, and to promote the feeling of friendship among them.

The General Society shall be divided into State Societies, which shall meet annually on the day appointed therefor in their respective by-laws, and oftener if found expedient; and at such annual meeting the reasons for the institution of the Society shall be considered and the best measures for carrying them into effect adopted.

The State Societies, at each annual meeting, shall choose, by a majority of the votes present, a president, a vice-president, a secretary, a registrar, a treasurer, a chaplain, and such other officers as may by them respectively be deemed necessary, together with a board of managers consisting of these officers and of nine other members, all of whom shall retain their respective positions until their successors are duly chosen.

Each State Society shall cause to be transmitted annually, or oftener, to the other State Societies, a circular-letter calling attention to whatever may be thought worthy of observation respecting the welfare of the Society or of the general union of the States, and giving information of the officers chosen for the year; and copies of these letters shall also be transmitted to the general secretary to be preserved among the records of the General Society.

The State Societies shall regulate all matters respecting their own affairs, consistent with the general good of the Society; judge of the qualification of their members, or of those proposed for membership, subject, however, to the provisions of this Constitution; and expel any member who, by conduct unbecoming a gentleman or a man of honor, or by an opposition to the interests of the community in general or the Society in particular, may render himself unworthy to continue in membership.

In order to form funds that may be respectable, each member shall contribute upon his admission to the Society, and annually thereafter, such sums as the By-Laws of the respective State Societies may require; but any of such State Societies may provide for the endowment of memberships by the payment of proper sums in capitalization, which sums shall be properly invested as a permanent fund, the income only of which shall be expended.

The regular meeting of the General Society shall be held every three years, and special meetings may be held upon the order of the general president, or upon the request of two of the State Societies, and such meetings shall consist of the general officers and a representation not exceeding five deputies from each State Society, and the necessary expenses of such meeting shall be borne by the State Societies.

At the regular meeting a general president, vice-president, secretary, assistant secretary, treasurer, assistant treasurer, and chaplain shall be chosen by a majority of the votes present to serve until the next regular general meeting, or until their successors are duly chosen.

At each general meeting the circular-letters which have been transmitted by the several State Societies shall be considered, and all measures taken which shall conduce to the general welfare of the Society.

The General Society shall have power, at any meeting, to admit State Societies thereto, and to entertain and determine all questions affecting the qualification for membership in or the welfare of any State Society as may by proper memorial be presented by such State Society for consideration.

Any male person above the age of twenty-one years, of good character, and a descendant of one who, as a military, naval, or marine officer, soldier, sailor, or marine, in actual service under the authority of any of the thirteen Colonies or States, or of the Continental Congress, and remaining always loyal to such authority, or a descendant of one who signed the Declaration of Independence, or of one who, as a member of the Continental Congress or of the Congress of any of the Colonies or States, or as an official appointed by or under the authority of any such legislative bodies, actually assisted in the establishment of American Independence by services rendered during the War of the Revolution, becoming thereby liable to conviction of treason against the government of Great Britain, but remaining always loyal to the authority of the Colonies or States, shall be eligible to membership in the Society.

The secretary of each State Society shall transmit to the general secretary a list of the members thereof, together with the names and official designations of those from whom such members derive claim to membership; and thereafter, upon the admission of members in each State Society, the secretary thereof shall transmit to the general secretary information respecting such members similar to that therein required.

The Society shall have an insignia, which shall be a badge suspended from a ribbon by a ring of gold; the badge to be elliptical in form, with scalloped edges, one and one-quarter inches in length, and one and one-eighth inches in width; the whole surmounted by a gold eagle, with wings displayed inverted; on the obverse side a medallion of gold in the centre, elliptical in form, bearing on its face the figure of a soldier in Continental uniform with musket slung; beneath, the figures 1775; the medallion surrounded by thirteen raised gold stars of five points each upon a border of dark blue enamel. On the reverse side, in the centre, a medallion corresponding in form to that on the obverse, and, also in gold, bearing on its face the Houdon portrait of Washington in bas-relief, encircled by the legend, Sons of the Revolution; beneath, the figures 1883; and upon the reverse of the eagle the number of the badge to be engraved; the medallion to be surrounded by a plain gold border conforming in dimensions to the obverse; the ribbon shall be dark blue, ribbed and watered, edged with buff, one and one-quarter inches wide, and one and one-half inches in displayed length.

The insignia of the Society shall be worn by the members on all occasions when they assemble as such for any stated purpose or celebration, and may be worn on any occasions of ceremony; it shall be carried conspicuously on the left breast, but members who are or have been officers of the Society may wear the insignia suspended from the ribbon around the neck.

The custodian of the insignia shall be the general secretary, who shall issue them to members of the Society under such proper rules as may be formulated by the General Society, and he shall keep a register of such issues wherein each insignia issued may be identified by the number thereof.

The seal of the Society shall be one and seven-eighths inches in diameter, and shall consist of the figure of a Minute-Man in Continental uniform, standing on a ladder leading to a belfry; in his left hand he holds a musket and an olive branch, whilst his right grasps a bell rope; above, the cracked Liberty Bell, issuing therefrom a ribbon bearing the motto of the Society, Exegi monumentum ære perennius; across the top of the ladder, on a ribbon, the figures 1776; and on the left of the Minute-Man, and also on a ribbon, the figures 1883, the year of the formation of the Society; the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of an inch wide; thereon at the top thirteen stars of five points each; at the bottom the name of the General Society, or of the State Society to which the seal belongs.

SOCIETY OF

[Incorporated on the 18th day of December, 1889.]

BY = LAWS.

SECTION I.

Members shall be elected as follows: Candidates shall send their respective applications and documents, or other proofs of qualification for membership, through the Secretary, to the Board of Managers, which is authorized to judge of the merits of an application in such manner as it may deem best. Upon a favorable decision of said Board, and upon payment of the initiation fee, applicants shall thereupon become members of the Society.

No person shall be admitted to membership unless he shall have first made written application therefor, approved by two members, over their signatures.

SECTION II.

The initiation fee shall be five dollars; the annual dues, three dollars; or the payment at one time of seventy-five dollars shall constitute a life member, and the member so paying shall thenceforth be exempt from the payment of annual dues.

Members admitted during the last quarter of any year shall be exempted from the payment of dues for that year.

Any member who may contribute one hundred and fifty dollars to the permanent use of the Society shall be exempt from the payment of annual dues, and this exemption shall extend in perpetuity to his lineal successors in membership, one at a time, who may be selected for such exemption by the Society.

SECTION III.

In order to form funds which may be respectable, and assist the unfortunate, all life-membership fees or donations for the purpose which shall hereafter be paid the Society shall remain forever to the use of the Society; the interest only of which, if necessary, to be appropriated to the relief of the unfortunate.

SECTION IV.

The Society shall hold an annual meeting on the third day of December in every year, at which a general election of officers by ballot shall take place, except when such date shall fall on Sunday, in which case the meeting shall be held on the following day. In such election, a majority of the ballots given for any office shall constitute a choice; but if, on the first ballot, no person shall receive such majority, then a further balloting shall take place in which a plurality of votes given for any office shall determine the choice therefor.

SECTION V.

At all meetings of the Society one-quarter of the total membership shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SECTION VI.

The President, or in his absence, the Vice-President, or in his absence, a chairman pro tempore, shall preside at all meetings of the Society and of the Board of Managers, and shall exercise the usual functions of a presiding officer, under general parliamentary rules, subject to an appeal to the Society in proper cases under those rules. The President shall be, ex officio, a member of all committees. He shall represent the Society in every council for which the Society shall not have chosen a representative either specially for such council or for a definite period during which such Council may be called.

He shall, through the Secretary, call special meetings of the Society at such times as he may see fit.

He shall also perform such other representative duties on behalf of the Society, either personally or by correspondence, as it or the Board of Managers may find desirable or necessary, or as customarily appertain to his office, and shall enforce a strict observance of the Constitution, By-Laws, and Standing Regulations.

In case of his decease, resignation, neglect to serve, or inability from any cause to act as President, the duties of the office shall devolve on the Vice-President, until the vacancy caused by such decease, resignation, or neglect to serve, shall be filled, or until the inability shall cease.

SECTION VII.

The Secretary shall conduct the general correspondence of the Society and keep a record thereof. He shall notify all qualified and accepted candidates of their admission, and perform such other duties as the Society, Board of Managers, or his office may require of him. He shall have charge of the seal, by-laws, historical and other documents and records of the Society other than those required to be deposited with the Registrar and Historian, and shall affix the seal to all properly authenticated certificates of membership, and transmit the same without delay to the member for whom it is issued or to his proper representative. He, together with the presiding officer, shall certify all acts of the Society, and, in proper cases, authenticate them under seal. In his absence from any meeting, a Secretary pro tempore may be designated therefor.

SECTION VIII.

The Treasurer shall collect and keep the funds and securities of the Society; and as often as those funds shall amount to one hundred dollars they shall be deposited in some bank in the City of Washington to the credit of the Society of the SONS OF THE REVOLUTION, and shall be drawn thence on the check of the Treasurer for the purposes of the Society only. Out of these funds he shall pay such sums only as may be ordered by the Society or by the Board of Managers, and shall perform such other duties as the Society, Board of Managers, or his office may require of him. He shall keep a true account of his receipts and payments, and, at each annual meeting, render the same to the Society, when a committee shall be appointed to audit his accounts.

For the faithful performance of his duty he shall give such security as the Society, or Board of Managers in lieu of its action thereon, may from time to time require.

SECTION IX.

At every annual meeting the President may designate a Chaplain and a Historian for the ensuing year from among the members; and in case of the happening of a vacancy in either of these offices, the President may, in like manner, fill such vacancy for the unexpired term.

The Chaplain shall be a regularly ordained minister of a Christian denomination, and it shall be his duty to open and close all meetings with customary chaplaincy service, and perform such other duties as ordinarily pertain to such office.

The Historian shall keep a detailed record of all the historical and commemorative celebrations of the Society; he shall edit and prepare for publication such historical addresses, essays, papers and other documents of an historical character, other than a Register of Members, as the Secretary may be required to publish; and at every annual meeting, if there shall be a necrological list for the year then closing, he shall submit the same with carefully prepared biographies of the deceased members.

SECTION X.

The Board of Managers shall be fifteen, namely: The President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, Registrar, and Chaplain, ex officio, and nine other members, who shall be elected at the annual meeting in every year in the same manner as the officers of the Society.

They shall judge of the qualifications of every candidate who shall make proper application for admission to the Society, and shall have power to admit him to membership therein if found eligible under the Constitution.

They may arrange for commemorative celebrations by the Society.

They shall recommend plans to the Society for promoting its purposes, and, when practicable, may digest and prepare business for its meetings.

They shall generally superintend the interests and shall have the control and management of the affairs and funds of the Society, as authorized by law. They shall also perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Constitution or By-Laws, or required by any standing regulation or resolve of the Society. They shall be competent to consent to and to accept the resignation or voluntary withdrawal from membership of any enrolled member of the Society.

They shall supervise all publications issued in its name, and they may require the attendance of any member of the Society enrolled therein, or any Committee thereof, at any meeting, for consultation and advice.

Five of the Board of Managers shall be a quorum for the transaction of business.

SECTION XII.

Upon the demand of five members at any meeting of the Society the ayes and nays shall be called on any pending motion or resolve which may be voted upon and duly entered on the minutes.

SECTION XIII.

No person who may be enrolled as a member in this Society shall be permitted to continue in membership where the proofs of claim of qualification by descent are found to be defective and insufficient to substantiate such claim, or not properly authenticated. The Society or the Board of Managers may, at any time after thirty days' notice to such person to properly substantiate or authenticate his claim, require the Secretary to erase his name from the list of members, and such person shall thereupon cease to be a member: Provided, He shall have failed or neglected to comply satisfactorily with such notice.

Where the Board of Managers shall direct the erasure of a person's name for a cause comprehended under this section, such person shall have a right of appeal to the next annual meeting; but he shall not be restored to membership unless by a majority vote on that occasion, or at a subsequent meeting to which the consideration of the appeal may have been specifically postponed.

SECTION XIV.

The Board of Managers shall have power to expel any enrolled member of this Society who, by conduct unbecoming a gentleman and a man of honor, or by an opposition to the interests of the community in general, or of this Society in particular, may render himself unworthy to continue a member, or who shall persistently transgress, or, without good excuse, wilfully neglect the performance of any obligation enjoined by the Constitution, or by these By-Laws, or by any standing regulation of this Society: Provided, That he shall have received at least ten days' notice of the complaint preferred against him, and of the time and place for hearing the same, and have been thereby afforded an opportunity to be heard in person or by counsel.

Whenever the cause of expulsion shall not have involved turpitude or moral unworthiness, any member thus expelled may, upon the recommendation of the Board of Managers, but not otherwise, be restored to membership by the Society at any meeting.

The Board of Managers shall also have power to drop from the Roll the name of any enrolled member of the Society who shall be at least two years in arrears in the payment of dues, and who, on notice to pay the same, shall fail and neglect to do so within ten days thereafter, and, upon being thus dropped, his membership shall cease and determine, but he may be restored to membership at any time by the Board of Managers on his application therefor, and upon his payment of all such arrears and of the annual dues from the date when he was dropped to the date of his restoration. The Board of Managers may also suspend any officer from the performance of his duties for cause, which proceeding must be reported to the Society and acted upon by it within thirty days, either by rescission of the suspension or removal of the suspended officer from office, or otherwise the suspension shall cease.

SECTION XV.

Whenever an officer of this Society shall die, resign, or neglect to serve, or be unable to properly perform the duties of his office by reason of absence, sickness, or other cause, the President shall have power to appoint a member to such office pro tempore, who shall act in such capacity until the Society shall elect a successor, or until the inability due to "absence, sickness, or other cause" shall cease: Provided, however, That the office of President shall not thus be filled when there shall be a Vice-President to enter upon its duties.

Subject to these provisions, all officers of the Society and the members of the Board of Managers shall, from the time of their election or appointment, continue in their respective offices until the next annual meeting, and until their respective successors shall be duly chosen.

SECTION XVI.

No resignation or voluntary withdrawal from membership of any member enrolled in this Society shall become effective as a release from the obligations thereof, unless consented to and accepted by the Board of Managers.

SECTION XVII.

It shall be a Standing Rule that, upon the decease of any member residing within the territorial jurisdiction of the Society, notice thereof and of the time and place of the funeral shall be given by the Secretary by publication, and it shall thereupon become the duty of the members, when practicable, to attend the obsequies.

Any member, upon being informed of the decease of a member, resident as stated, shall make it his business to see that the Secretary is promptly notified of the fact.

SECTION XVIII.

No amendment to these By-Laws shall be made except upon the unanimous consent of a quorum of the Board of Managers, or of two-thirds of a quorum of the Society present at a regularly called meeting.

SECTION XIX.

It shall be the duty of every member to inform the Secretary, by written communication, of his place of residence and of any change thereof, and of his post-office address.

Service of any notice under the Constitution or under these By-Laws upon any member of the Society, addressed to him at his last recorded place of residence or post-office address and forwarded by mail, shall be deemed sufficient service of such notice.

WILLIAM MATTHEWS LAY.

BORN MARCH 5, 1845; DIED DECEMBER 21, 1893.

William Matthews Lay, the subject of this sketch, was born in Washington, D. C., March 5, 1845, the night after the inauguration of Polk as President of the United States, and the night of the burning of the old National Theatre. His early boyhood was spent in this city, and when the corner-stone of the Washington Monument was being conveyed from the Baltimore and Ohio station to the Monument grounds he was lifted up on the stone by his uncle, Captain Thomas Carbery, Vice-President of the Monument Association, and formerly Mayor of the city, and rode there until the wagon broke through the bridge, at 14th street, over the old canal which separated Washington from what was then called "The Island"—now South Washington.

His parents, like many of the old Washington families, were Roman Catholics, and when he was fifteen years of age he was sent to St. Francis College, in Cambria county, Pennsylvania, where he remained about a year. He then returned to Washington, and when the second battle of Bull Run took place he was one of several young men who went to the battlefield as volunteer nurses under the call issued by Secretary Stanton. Almost all of the party were captured by the Confederates, marched to Harper's Ferry and then to Richmond, where they were incarcerated in the celebrated Libby Prison. A day or two after his arrival there, on account of his quickness and adaptability, he was made clerk to the Commissioners of Exchange, and in this way probably escaped some of the hardships of prison life, although when he was exchanged, a month later, and reached his home in this city he was completely prostrated by his experiences. He soon recovered his health, as he was naturally robust, and remained in Washington looking after the interests of his father's estate during the remainder of the war. The family lived in a large house on the 7th-street road, near what was then Fort Stevens, and during Early's raid, in July, 1864, the house and all its valuable contents were burned by order of the military authorities.

After the war he went to Savannah and engaged in business there, but in 1876 he returned to Washington and took charge of his father's interests.

He was appointed a clerk in the Surgeon-General's Office on March 20, 1880, and was promoted in 1882, 1885, 1888, and to the place which, at the time of his death, he held in the Record and Pension Office of the War Department, in 1890.

Through Lieut. Asa Lay, of the 5th Connecticut regiment, who served on the staff of Baron Steuben with the rank of Colonel, the subject of this sketch was eligible as a member of this Society. Asa Lay married a daughter of Oliver Wolcott, Governor of the State of Connecticut, and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and there is now in the possession of the family a sword which he captured from a British officer at West Point.

Of his character and sterling worth I cannot say too much. When a mere boy he was noted for his honesty and keen sense of justice, and these characteristics clung to him through his life, the cardinal principles of which were honor, integrity, and purity. He was a man whose word was as good as his bond, and whose Christian charity was never failing. He was a gentleman in the best sense of the word, a loving son and brother, a genial companion, and a husband and father beyond reproach.
